SMILE

Smile when your heart aches,
Smile when you're sad,
Smile though your heart breaks,
Make someone glad.

Don't listen to worry,
It sits like a pall,
But with the crowd hurry,
You're one of them all.

THE ROLL CALL OF THE CHURCHES

A bulletin of church statistics issued under date of February, 1915, contains interesting facts concerning the churches of Christ in America. It is well worth while to consider briefly these facts especially in their relation to the missionary movement of our Congregational order. The grand total of communicants in all these churches for 1913 was increased by unusual reports from the Roman Catholic Church. This was partly on account of the fact that statistics prepared for 1912 were not reported immediately but included in the reports for 1913. The gain in church membership is not discouraging. The members of the Methodist Episcopal Church have increased with greatest rapidity, showing a total gain of 187,000 as against 122,000 of the previous year. The Congregational churches show a total membership in 1914, by these correct government statistics, of 755,088. This indicated an increase of 20,000 in the membership during the decade closing 1910. This increase was not proportionate to that of previous decades as 1900 showed an increase of 124,000 members and 1890 showed an increase of 242,000 members. In the increase of the Roman Catholic Church, however, there has been a similar falling off as in 1910 there was an increase of only 1,228,000 in the total membership of this church, whereas, in 1890, there was an increase of 6,423,000.

An interesting feature of the report is the membership of the Colored Baptist churches. This represented a very small number, less than 700.000 in 1890; by these statistics now before us in 1914 the Colored Baptist churches show a membership of 2,000,000, almost the same as the Southern Baptist Church. The total increase represents 2% in the membership of all the Christian churches. Not phenomenal but encouraging.

The American Missionary Association rejoices with the entire Christian fellowship in the election of Rev. Sidney Gulick, D.D., as Associate Secretary of the Federal Council Commission of Peace and Arbitration. He will continue to serve the Commission on Relations of Japan as heretofore.

THE CONGREGATIONAL BOARD OF MINISTERIAL RELIEF

Office: 287 Fourth Avenue, New York.
Henry A. Stimson, D.D., President; William A. Rice, D.D., Secretary; B. H. Fancher, Treasurer.

A COMPARATIVE STATEMENT OF RECEIPTS

BOARD OF MINISTERIAL RELIEF

FOR JANUARY 1914 AND 1915

	Churches	Individuals	Affi. Soc.	Interest	Legacies	Totals
1914.....	$ 4.507.35	$ 301.13	$ 1,685.18	$ 1,718.56	$ 12.42	$8.224 64
1915.....	4.028.17	589.04	594.45	2,716.50	212.42	8,140 58
Gain.....	.....	$ 287.91	.....	$ 997.94	$ 200.00	.....
Loss.....	$ 479.18	.....	$ 1,090.73	.....	.....	$ 84 06

We are glad that the showing is as good as it is. Increased gifts from individuals and receipts from interest and legacies pretty nearly overcome the loss from Churches and Affiliated Organizations. By Affiliated Organizations we refer to gifts from Sunday-schools, Young People's Societies, Women's Societies, State Relief Societies and offerings made by District Associations and State Conferences. In the final figures for the Year Book all gifts from Affiliated Organizations so far as possible are credited to the local churches. Perhaps the falling off in receipts from churches may be accounted for by the fact that more churches in 1914 remitted quarterly as requested by the Apportionment Commission than in former years. This would naturally make the receipts in January, 1915, to be credited on 1914, somewhat less. We are confident that the conditions prevailing, occasioned principally by the dreadful war in Europe, will make the year 1915 difficult for all benevolent organizations. We therefore appeal to the friends of the aged ministers to keep near their hearts and purses the claims of the veterans during 1915.

THE ANNUITY FUND

We have been much encouraged during the past month by additions to the membership of the Annuity Fund. Plans are being developed to promote the interest of this Fund both in membership and receipts. The Fund is securely established already and its work will be carried forward as earnestly and efficiently as possible. A great enterprise like this cannot be brought to full success and fruition in the period of a few months or even years. That the Annuity idea is growing in favor with our ministers and laymen we believe is beyond question. We are confident that we are on the right track and that the Annuity Fund is one of the greatest and most helpful undertakings put into existence by our denomination for many years.

FOREWORD

We desire thus early to call the attention of our Pastors, Sunday-School Superintendents, the Officers of the Young People's Societies and of the Woman's Home Missionary Organizations to the fact that by mutual agreement with the National Societies the right of way, so far as it shall meet the approval of the representatives of these organizations, shall be given to the cause of Ministerial Relief in the month of May. In due course a letter will be sent to the pastors, and we hope through them to these other organizations, giving a statement of our plans for this cause in May. May is the month when we hold a Memorial Day in behalf of the departed soldiers and heroes who have defended their country and long since entered into their rest. Let us at least observe one Sunday in May, preferably the one immediately preceding Memorial Day, in memory of the living soldiers of the Cross upon whom the gathering of the years has brought the infirmities of old age.

EXTRACTS FROM LETTERS FROM PENSIONERS

"I am so ill I can scarcely hold a pen. I can hardly sleep at night. I can only walk about two blocks at a time. I am deaf and cannot hear any noise, not even the trolley cars nor the trains. I am growing weaker every day and I hope for a better day soon. The landlady is good and kind."

One of heroic service.

"Will you kindly send necessary papers for an applicant for ministerial relief. I was 73 years of age last May. I have been in active service in one state since 1900. I have organized six and built three churches and preached at many outstations, mining camps, logging camps and school houses. I am too old to seek another pastorate. I cannot walk the many miles I have been accustomed to. We have no home of our own. We have never been able to save. I have not received over $50 per month for many years. My wife is not well and I would like to spend a little while caring for her who has given her health and strength and love to me for over 51 years."

One of grateful appreciation.

"Your kindness stipulates that the recipient of a pension from your society need not make formal acknowledgment of remittances that are made. I appreciate the thoughtful consideration of that proviso. Nevertheless, my heart compels a word of grateful acknowledgment. As it was three months ago, so now, only in greater measure, sickness in the family multiplies the value of the draft that came to hand on the first instant many times for us. I have no wish to rehearse a tale of woe, rather I simply wish to indicate the conditions which have served to reveal to us more fully the preciousness and aptitude of the gracious Providence embodied in that bit of paper. It certainly meant much to us."

From a recent applicant.

"It has been with great difficulty and not without much effort and prayer that I have brought myself to make the following application. I am a Congregational minister of 50 years' standing, and during the whole of that period I have hardly been a month without a pastoral charge. My average salary has varied from $500 to $800 per annum. I am 73 years of age. I resigned my last pastorate on the 50th year of my ministerial life."

"Our rent is falling behind, but we hope to cover it with the next Ministerial Relief check."

THE CONGREGATIONAL HOME MISSIONARY SOCIETY

Office: 287 Fourth Avenue, New York.

Charles E. Burton, D.D., General Secretary; Rev. Herman F. Swartz, Associate Secretary; Reuben L. Breed, D.D., Assistant Secretary; Chas. H. Baker, Treasurer; Miss Miriam L. Woodberry, Secretary Woman's Department.

Few of our constituents know much of the devoted service being rendered to the Kingdom by the members of the Board of Directors and the Executive Committee of The Congregational Home Missionary Society. The third Tuesday of every month the Executive Committee meet at headquarters and spend the day in careful consideration of the affairs of the Society. The attendance approaches one hundred per cent. The eleven members come from five different states and they give the entire day to the business of the churches through the Society. The larger and more widely distributed body of Directors meets less frequently, but gives equally earnest attention to the work. As announced in last month's issue these devoted people furnish the copy for the home missionary section of the magazine this month. The editor feels that our readers will enjoy this inside view of the workings of their home missionary agency.

Remembering the serious situation which the Society faced a year ago on account of unusually low legacy receipts, and, in view of the fact that such receipts are of necessity fluctuating, the Board of Directors has instructed the Executive Committee to equalize the expenditures of such receipts. The basis of the plan adopted was arrived at by averaging the receipts of the past ten years. We are sure that the wisdom of this course will commend itself to our friends, even though it should involve temporary inconvenience.

Several of the writers in this issue have mentioned the midwinter meeting in Chicago in January. One outstanding fact is worthy of emphatic notice, namely, the strong spirit of unity existing among all the workers. This was clearly evident at the conference, and the conference was expressive of the situation throughout the country. Harmony is so general that even ripples of disagreement are hard to find. This augurs well for strong work in the coming months and years.

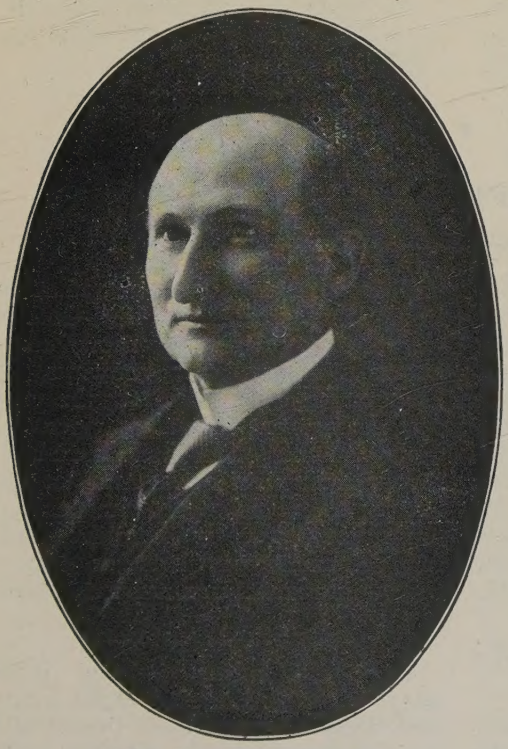
At the meeting of the Directors of The Congregational Home Missionary Society in Chicago on January 19th, the Illinois Home Missionary Society proposed a change in the division of receipts between the national Society and the State Society, on the basis of twenty-five per cent. for national work and seventy-five per cent. for state work, instead of twenty and eighty per cent. as in the past. Other states are considering following this good example. Pending such progress, the schedules of percentages in the other Constituent States were voted on the same basis as last year.

A WORD FROM THE PRESIDENT

Rev. W. L. Phillips, D.D., New Haven, Ct.

I HAVE been in close touch with our home missionary operations for many years, and the thing that has impressed me most, apart from the fine quality and efficiency of our officials and missionaries, is the splendid loyalty and devotion of our Directors and Executive Committee. One now and then hears a bit of criticism, but it is usually from those who do not know the facts, or who fancy there is something to be gained for another organization by a comparison unfavorable to us.

The men who compose the Board of Directors and Executive Committee represent all sections of the country and each is familiar with the conditions in his section. They are giving the best that is in them to the solution of the perplexing and pressing problems that are ever emerging, and to the endeavor to stretch a limited income over the vast reaches and ever-growing needs of the country; and since we have come into closer relations with the Woman's Boards by the appointment of a gracious woman to our Executive Committee, we have added the one lacking element making for efficiency.



REV. W. L. PHILLIPS, D.D.

It has been my fortune to sit with many Boards and Commissions. I have yet to find one that gives more earnest thought and real prayer to its task than do the Directors of this Society. There is prolonged, sometimes sharp, discussion, with many differences of opinion, but every meeting is a meeting for prayer. The sense of responsibility for doing in the best way our full share of the Master's work in America is always present. No appeal is treated lightly, no man's work is regarded as unimportant, no leakage is considered negligible.

The ever present problem is: How can this money, contributed by the churches, much of it bearing the marks of sacrifice, all of it testifying to the devotion of our people, as well as money committed to us by the wills of men who have passed into the heavens, be made to produce the largest and most permanent results? To this problem our Directors and Executive Committee address themselves with patience, courage, and a deep reliance on the Spirit's guidance. The Year-Book, with its reports of largest relative gains in home mission fields, has something to say about their faithfulness and success. It is not vain boasting to challenge any other set of men to make this money go farther or accomplish more.

I am also impressed with the dire need of rousing our people to an appreciation of the significance of home mission history and of the necessities of the present hour.

Alaska is soon to be opened, extending our frontier by thousands of miles. The northern and middle western sections of our country have become one vast home missionary field through the pouring in of foreign populations, congesting the cities, filling the factories and mines, and forcing the native dwellers off the farms. These people must be met at the very gateway of the Republic with the outstretched hand of Christian interest and sympathy; they must be followed wherever they go; they must have the gospel—our gospel of faith in God, right living, intelligence, and good citizenship—preached to them. The great Southland sorely needs the testimony and the uplifting influence of our Puritan faith. The rural churches, depleted and weakened, must be kept in line with the other regenerating forces of the land, and helped to realize an even richer life than that of their prolific past. Here is the present-day home missionary problem. The home missionary societies are the established, honored of God, and efficient agencies for doing this work. But they must have behind them a believing, open-eyed, and generous church. The church must see our Lord's vision for America and perceive His purpose in setting up here the "melting pot" of the nations.

We need a commanding and persuasive voice to sound the summons in all our churches and homes, to convince our people that this is the time and America the place where God desires to work out some of the greatest religious, social, and industrial problems of the ages. We need, we Congregational folk, rich in tradition, in intelligent faith, in culture, and in means, we need to have ears to hear and eyes to see and hearts to respond. We must do our part in making America God's country, or we shall be "without the wedding garment" when the triumph is celebrated.

AFTER AN OFFICIAL VACATION

Rev. Charles S. Mills, D.D., Montclair, N. J.

THE suggestions of the Executive Committee will, I believe, be most effective if they have a distinct personal flavor. In that spirit, let me say that it has been a joy beyond words to come back to the Board of Directors, and, on entering the Executive Committee for the first time, to find the Society swinging steadily forward in its nation-wide ministries. Among impressions recently gathered are

The Comprehensiveness of the Service Rendered

Those who sit around the executive board consider in turn the problems of our polyglot population from Ellis Island to the Golden Gate; the unchurched new communities along our railways in Montana and the Dakotas; the vast spaces covered by circuit riders in their Wyoming and Idaho parishes; the call of liberty-loving sons of the South; the promise and the peril of our great cities. It is a never-ending panorama of Christian opportunity and social and spiritual need.

Increasing Effectiveness

Our missionaries at the front prove their fiber in sacrificial living and daily achievement. Never did we command a more efficient body of Superintendents—brave, strong men, serving with statesman-like vision and intrepid courage, areas often equal to empires and presenting problems diverse and perplexing. The new policy of increasing the district under the Superintendent wherever practicable, and the change made at this time by which Pennsylvania is linked with New Jersey and Indiana with Illinois, are pertinent illustrations of confidence in our home mission leadership.

REV. CHAS. S. MILLS, D.D.

The administrative office, though losing its masterly leader a year ago, and assembling an entirely new personnel within four or five years, has gained notably in efficiency through comprehensive plans, clean-cut division of labor, scientific specialization, and fine team work, so that in the executive boards we find an expert, with all the facts and figures bearing on any given case, ready at our call.

A Sound Financial Policy

From the day of reorganization the definite business policy of cutting the budget to a conservative estimate of probable receipts has proven its worth, even though it has made many points of advance impossible, for the Society has been able to close its books in each successive year without indebtedness. The securities hypothecated in the time of debt, long since released, have been steadily increased, and the invested funds held in trust now amount to $795,505.41. The churches believe in a policy that keeps the Society out of debt. The Legacy Equalization Fund, established three or four years ago, is now to be made more effective by the provision that not more than $120,000 in legacies shall be spent in any one year until the reserve in the Equalization Fund shall reach $100,000, and that not more than one-half of the balance in the Fund shall be used in any one year. If the present rate of receipts continues, we expect to be able to meet all obligations and to begin the new year with a substantial sum in this Fund, putting the Home Missionary Society in a strong position for the aggressive work of the year to come.

Efficiency of the Representative Principle

Before the reorganization there was sharp antagonism for many years between the State Societies and the national Society. Since then, under a representative Board of Directors and a percentage division of receipts, there has been a noble spirit of unity, never more in evidence than at the fine Chicago meeting. In this period several states, formerly dependent upon national bounty, have become Constituent, and now contribute to the national work. This winter a special committee of Directors urged upon the various states the increase, if possible, of their percentage for the national Society, in view of the fact that one-half of the population of the United States is in territory for which the national Society is directly responsible, and that the work in these sections is far less vigorously manned than in the Constituent States. The overture was met with the utmost good feeling and a strong expression of desire and purpose to increase the resources of the national Society. Illinois definitely increased its rate from twenty to twenty-five per cent. Several other Directors took back from the Chicago meeting to their states an earnest message, backed by their own advocacy, for this increase of revenue wherever possible. The value of the principle of state nomination of Directors receives hereby special emphasis, for if a board appointed by the Society were to carry such a message to states burdened with their own great needs, it could not have the force which obtains now, when the board is chiefly made up of those whom the states themselves nominate. This underlying democratic principle makes for intelligent discrimination, mutual understanding, and a spirit of unity, and has been one of the greatest influences in the new era of harmony and effectiveness. In a word, distributed over the nation, much of it immediately under the eye of our stronger states, the cultivation of local responsibility and the fashioning of national policies through the counsel of those most intimately associated with the state work is a factor of the first magnitude.

A LOOK ACROSS THE CONTINENT

Rev. A. B. Patten, D.D., Sacramento, Cal.

IT takes but a short term as Director of the Home Missionary Society to redouble one's appreciation of its noble work. The Pilgrim culture and the Pilgrim character are still leavening the nation through our men on the field. They are widely distributed. Our primary problem now is that of emphasis. We must not do less anywhere, but in some sections we must do more. As a man from the Far West, I can give, without prejudice, my conviction that probably our loudest call to-day comes from the Southeast. Why should not Florida, for example, become another California for Congregationalism? Or, rather, why should not Congregationalism repeat in Florida her brave work of church extension and ethical evangelism? Then from Indiana to the Gulf of Mexico there is an urgent demand for our type of message—the type whose aim is not so much to make men feel good as to make men of good feeling. But it is not only our educational evangelism for which thousands of inquiring minds are hungry in the New South; it is also our democratic spirit of church rule. The new wine is demanding a new bottle.

We must not go into Dixie land to proselyte, but we may rightly go, when we are urged to do so by the well-to-do whites, as well as when we are permitted to do so by the poor whites. A Congregational church in Birmingham, Alabama, is certainly as consistent as a Methodist Episcopal Church, South, in Sacramento, California. We have the latter here, and its pastor is a warm friend of the writer. The South is deeply religious, but it is losing many liberal minds to its churches just now because those churches too often insist that the old-time religion shall not live in the same sanctuary with the new-time theology. Shall we not be ready to offer sanctuary to such minds, when they come to our leaders and beg for help?

We are certainly blessed with notable leadership in Secretaries Burton, Swartz, and Breed. We also have strong men as state and regional superintendents. For our future policy, when new appointments and adjustments are made, would it not be wise to put still bigger men on larger fields, rather than ordinary men on smaller fields?

Statistics given at Chicago show that Congregational growth follows our efficient efforts equally well in any part of the nation. The whole national world is our field. Only yesterday we were rejoicing over abundant returns for our missionary work in the Northwest. Now we are rejoicing over abounding rewards in the Southeast. May we match our men with our money and our challenge with our consecration!

GLIMPSES OF THE MIDWINTER MEETING

Mr. Arthur J. Lockwood, Glen Ridge, N. J.

IT has been my privilege to attend the midwinter meeting of The Congregational Home Missionary Society. Chicago was the place selected, being more accessible than places either east or west for most of the people engaged in home mission work. A centrally-located hotel was chosen for the meetings, and here most of the delegates stayed. Directors, officials, and Superintendents came from all parts of the country, and opportunity was afforded for meeting the workers in this great cause. These workmen come together at rare intervals, and their varied experiences constitute of themselves a certain kind of education. They eagerly listen to those who have helpful information to give, so as to render themselves better servants of their needy fellowmen.

Love of God the Father, and belief in His Son, the Lord Jesus Christ, have so filled them with the Holy Spirit that they cheerfully go into city slums, lonely country outposts, and sordid mining and manufacturing districts, there to carry the knowledge of this love to others and to show them how to live in and make the best of this present world. By one or another almost all the European languages are spoken, so that people from other lands can, in their own tongue, learn the way of life in the New World. These workers seem not only rooted and grounded in love, but also in faith, and one statement was made that he who could not make the Gospel interesting to a crowd could make nothing interesting and did not understand his business. The same speaker said people were not so much overworked to-day as overoccupied. How best to employ time on a long journey, how best to study when books are not readily obtainable, the formation of Chautauqua assemblies, and other means of education and interest were among the topics discussed. The fact was brought home that men and women of education and refinement live in uncomfortable surroundings, and upon such small salaries that we wonder how it is done. Pathetic stories were told of the help given in the missionary homes by the box of clothing and other necessaries. And in sending these boxes to the field, let us remember to place in them such things as we would give to our friends—things of comfort, of quality, of taste—for they are to be used by those who, "In His Name," have gone to the uttermost parts of the country, who receive very meager salaries, and whose greatest reward is the Master's "well done."

A number of papers, each to be read within the space of five minutes, were presented. One man, in order to ascertain exactly certain conditions in his very extended district, had written what seemed to me an appalling number of letters and managed to condense in such a way that the facts could be given in this short space of time. Surely their hearts are in the work! How to do one's work best seemed to be the universal theme. Owing to financial conditions, to the war, and with the danger of expenditures exceeding the income ever present, careful economy in alloting funds had to be exercised, and one good brother made the courageous and loyal statement, "Whatever the appropriation may be, we will make a faithful effort to get the most and best work for the money spent." Efficiency is a word we constantly hear to-day, and it is just as carefully aimed at by this Society as by the United States Steel Corporation.

One occasionally meets persons who claim to have no interest in Foreign Missions, notwithstanding Christ's direct command and the wonderful advantages given to the downtrodden peoples of the world by His gospel; but these same people will often admit the wisdom of sending the Gospel and the means of Christian education to the needy within the United States. The foreigner is coming among us in ever-increasing numbers, and from his entrance at Ellis Island to his location in the far extremes of our country, he is cared for by people connected with this and kindred societies. Many are familiar with such work as that of Professor Steiner, of Grinnell, Iowa, but few know that benevolent organizations are now sending abroad young and plastic men to live for awhile in the native land of the future immigrant, so as to be able to best care for him when he shall come to this country. The Congregational Home Missionary Society is united with other denominational home missionary organizations in instituting a serious investigation of immigrant communities in America, endeavoring to discover their location, population, and the types of religious nurture now existing among them, in order to prevent any overlooking and overlapping of effort. Seven officers, twenty-five Directors from all parts of the country, an Executive Committee of ten members, with thirty-nine Superintendents in the field are doing their best to help 1,785 missionaries, of whom about 500 are at work in new settlements in the West, about 300 in English-speaking city fields, 400 among immigrants, and some 500 in village and rural fields. To-day our general Apportionment Plan for raising money works well, but it has a drawback in that the special work of our various benevolent societies is not always presented to the people or is bulked in a general way. Devotion, economy, and efficiency seem to me to be especially characteristic of this Society and of all its laborers.

The plea of Home Missions is for the nation carrying the largest measure of the world's hopes; for the people capable of contributing most largely to the world's redemption. It means the Christianizing of our own country, that our world-wide influence may be a blessing and our nation be an object lesson to work the conviction and conversion of all heathen people.—Board of Home Missions, Presbyterian Church, South.

BY A NEW MEMBER OF THE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Rev. R. H. Potter, D.D., Hartford, Ct.

WHEN one passes from a general interest in The Congregational Home Missionary Society as a member and a friend of its work into closer contact as a member of its Executive Committee or Board of Directors, one is conscious that he is entering into the labors of others. The outreach of the Society into all parts of our country, the lines of its influence which run into hundreds of cities and towns which it is now serving, and into thousands of communities which it has served, and the manifold and complex nature of the relationships that have thus been established bear impressive witness to the faithful service and the devoted labors of a great host who have gone before.

This relationship of the Society to its past is a mighty asset. It yields a wealth of affection and sympathy and prayer and hope from a great host of friends and coworkers. It is an asset, too, which has its very tangible expression in the income of funds given in the past for the carrying out of its work, and in the legacies of those who have loved it in the past, which provide so large a part of the means for doing its work in the present. This devotion of the past is not a matter for cheap pride on our part, for we can not learn without some sense of humiliation that less than one-half of the means provided for the current work of the Society comes from the gifts of its present constituency. It is a splendid thing to have a noble past, but it is a shameful thing to depend upon that past for the discharge of duties which ought to be eagerly accepted by the present.

The history of the Society is also a great responsibility. We can not do its work as though we were entering a new field. We are bound to be loyal to the obligations which the work of the past has laid upon us. These obligations create a complex and difficult problem for those charged with immediate and direct responsibility for the Society's administration. It is often difficult to be both just and generous. It is difficult to be just at once to the present and the future and also to the past.

One is glad to find that the Society has been a leader in developing a catholic point of view and method of work in the home missionary enterprise. Its effort in this direction was long one of comparatively ineffective protest and witness. The time has now come when it seems likely that denominational pride and sectarian zeal will soon be a thing of the past in this nation-wide work of all the great bodies of Christian people. We must be loyal to the principle to which we have so long borne testimony, and, so far as in us lies, we must see to it that the charge and reproach of a narrow concern for denominational advantage can not be laid to us in any quarter.

The Society is also entering into a period of its life when larger thought will be given to strategic operations. In the earlier days of its history doubtless the only wise strategy was that of the primitive church, namely, to go everywhere preaching the Gospel. The second century of the expansion of the church in our country is forcing upon us a consideration of the relative values of opportunities for service. The Society is happy in being guided by men who are alert to these values, and it should be courageous in answering their vision of the opportunities, and in venturing upon the counsels which they give.

The work of the Society is a great work, not small in the amount of money which it spends directly, but truly great in the wide outreach of its influence and in the mighty motives which have ever been its inspiration —the love of country and the love of the kingdom of Christ. When we take into account the work done by the Constituent Societies the volume of the total task is greatly increased, and the methods used seem to be even more diversified and complex, but the motives are seen to be the same. The people of our churches may be confident that in serving our home mission enterprise through their interest, their gifts, and their prayers, they are worthily and effectively serving these highest of all the motives of life—pure patriotism and devoted faith.

FROM CLOUDS TO SUNSHINE

Mr. William B. Homer, St. Louis, Mo.

FOR seven years it has been my satisfaction and pleasure to have served as a member of the Board of Directors of The Congregational Home Missionary Society—a Board made up of able and experienced business men and distinguished ministers, representing every state in the Union. This body has labored thoroughly on the details of the work, as well as considered the broadest plans for the advancement of God's kingdom.

In 1908 the Society was deeply in debt, and the outlook for the future was dark and uncertain. Year by year, the clouds have been gradually dissipated, and the future seems bright and clear. The Society's affairs have been conducted in a business-like and upright manner. No organization has had executive officers more laborious, earnest, and conscientious than Presidents Mills, Woodrow, and Phillips, and Secretaries Herring and Burton. The Board of Directors and Executive Committee have supported them in their plans to the limit of their ability. But the work which has been accomplished has been made possible by the union of all the organizations in all the states, whether self-supporting or aided. The Society's financial condition is now excellent; its staff of workers, whether in the executive department or in the field, is the best; its freedom from factious criticism among the churches, whether missionary or self-sustaining, is remarkable; and the spirit of earnest endeavor to spread the good news of Christ pervades, I believe, all the churches of the country as never before.

OUR MISSIONARY BISHOPS

By Mrs. Harry Wade Hicks

ONE could not attend the annual midwinter conference of home missionary Superintendents and Secretaries without being more deeply impressed than ever before with the magnitude of the undertaking of The Congregational Home Missionary Society and with the loyal and statesmanlike Superintendents who are guiding the churches in their respective states.

What a pity that our Congregational churches can not know personally these men who are like bishops in their own states, many of them serving for a long period of years after having laid broad foundations for Congregationalism. Their coming and going from their fields is not heralded in any paper, religious or secular; there is no year of furlough when, like the foreign missionaries they may return to their friends and tell them "all the things the Lord hath done through them;" when they may be refreshed by rest and change of scene and work, and may build up a new group of personal friends who will follow them and their difficult work through a period of years. And so it comes to pass, that in spite of the fact that they are so near each other geographically, Congregationalists are less acquainted with their splendid home missionary bishops than with their foreign missionaries.

This is a very serious matter and deserves careful thought as to how the situation may be remedied. Can we not begin by urging friends who travel westward to plan a real home missionary pilgrimage in connection with their journey, getting in touch with the office of the Home Missionary Society far enough in advance of the trip to make it possible to correspond with the state Superintendent? Hundreds of Congregationalists, denied the privilege of seeing foreign missionary work at first hand, could either plan a visit to some part of the home mission field which would mean everything to the visitors personally and much to the churches with which they are connected. They would discover the vitality of these struggling Congregational churches and the heroism of the home missionary pastor and his family, suffering many times severely from isolation and almost privation, sharing his possessions with those about him in even greater need, because he is the only person to whom they can turn in distress, and he can not refuse.

There are many practical ways in which the work and the personality of these Superintendents can be brought to the attention of the people of the Congregational churches. In the first place, there is the map of the United States, which is at once a point of contact. There are all sorts of enlargements of a printed map which can be made to show the extent and variety of the work done; there might be issued pictures of our Superintendents which the Sunday-schools could use on maps or on the bulletin boards, in order that the young people might associate a name and a real personality with some of these empire-like states. We have left to the teacher in the public school the task of teaching our children the "products" and "principal cities" of these states, and have failed in our religious education to give to them the spiritual products and strongholds of our denomination. These missionary bishops are great men with great hearts and minds, and we owe it to the generation of Congregationalists now coming on to make these men mean something to them.

IMPRESSIONS OF A DIRECTOR

By Rev. John R. Nichols, D.D., Chicago, Ill.

NO one familiar with the inside workings of The Congregational Home Missionary Society can fail to be impressed with the fact that it is a thoroughly well-managed business organization. Some of the ablest business men of the denomination have given their time and experience to the affairs of this Society in the past few years, with the result that its business management is above criticism. Careful Christian men and women can give their money to this Society with confidence that it will do the largest possible service with the least possible waste.

The Society is no less efficient as a missionary organization. The financial interests are not only well looked after, but the Society as a whole is alert and efficient in promoting the great work for which it was organized. The Secretaries are able men, in love with their work, who are making a careful and comprehensive study of the problems of modern Home Missions, and who bring to the Board of Directors a well-suggested and statesman-like program. We are not working without a purpose; the leaders know thoroughly well what they want to do.

The men who are responsible for the work on the field are, on the whole, a capable, earnest, consecrated group, who are in the work through a love of men and for the glory of the Lord, Christ Jesus. One would go far to find a band of men who are doing more to conserve and promote our national ideals for so small a consideration. And this branch of the service is being constantly improved.

The midwinter conferences are occasions of great interest and importance. The men on the field and the Executive Committee come together to consider the claims of the different fields, to mature plans, and inaugurate measures which promise the largest success for this great branch of our denominational work. There are necessarily some disappointments—cherished hopes are delayed, or possibly crushed. But these men of God falter not. They go forth uncomplainingly, with meager resources, to do the best they can.

Finally, there is reason for abundant congratulation that a fine spirit of cooperation has grown up between the leading denominations, and is largely doing away with overlapping and unwarranted multiplication of churches. Fewer churches and better ones is the present slogan of the Society.

THE STRATEGIC IMPORTANCE OF HOME MISSIONS

Mr. T. M. Bates, Cleveland, Ohio

I WAS greatly impressed at the midwinter conference in Chicago by the address of Secretary Burton on Sunday afternoon, when he told us that the world was looking to America for its evangelization, and showed us how much the growth of our denomination depended upon our Home Missionary Society. Of the 111 new Congregational churches organized in 1913, 102, or all but nine, were home missionary churches. If our Home Missionary Society stopped its work, our denomination would diminish and, unless it were braced up in some other way, would naturally die out in the course of time.

This brought forcibly to my mind the urgent need of keeping up and strengthening our Home Missionary Society's work, without which we are unable to go forward as a denomination, and upon which our foreign missionary work so largely depends. It seemed as though Dr. Burton were talking as strongly for Foreign Missions as for Home Missions, but he always came back to the point of the dependence of the foreign work on the home work.

Another point dwelt upon by Dr. Burton was the importance of the Society's work in the cities, as such a large part of our gifts is derived from city churches. He remarked that help extended to home missionary churches in cities often produces one or two strong city churches in the course of a few years whose gifts for Missions are considerable. Of course all our home mission work in cities can not be expected to produce such results and there is no intention of minimizing the importance of work among foreigners and others, called by Secretary Swartz, I think, the unprivileged classes. With our cities growing rapidly and our country population showing a diminution, it would seem that our city work should come in for a large share of attention, and the question was properly raised whether or not the amount of money we spend for Home Missions in some of our sparsely-settled communities would not be productive of much more good if spent on city work. All of it is important and much needed.

We have some striking examples of what our work is accomplishing in cities in Cleveland, especially in the North Church which, under Rev. C. H. Lemmon, is rendering great service to workingmen. So also is Mizpah Church, which has come to self-support under the leadership of Rev. Philip Reitinger—the first Slavic church in this country to become self-supporting, I believe. Just think of a little home mission church of 140 members, mostly laboring men, with here and there a few mechanics, coming to self-support six years after its organization. At its morning service, conducted in the Bohemian language, it has an average attendance of 127. During the year 1914, $243 was contributed by the church to mission and temperance work, and $1,685 for home expenses, in all an average of $15.77 per member. In 1913 a pledge was received from every member but one and that a little girl. This church has purchased a lot for a parsonage, paying $1,250 for it, and has pledged some $1,075 toward the building, more than half of this being guaranteed by the members. Such examples as these give one confidence in the great good which is being done by Home Missions.

On the whole, the Chicago conference gave confidence in the work and made one enthusiastic to press on to larger service in the planting and maintaining of churches in many places where there is great need of them.

FROM THE PEN OF THE SCRIBE

Rev. Harris G. Hale, D.D., Brookline, Mass.

NO one could sit month after month around the table with the members of the Executive Committee of the Home Missionary Society without being deeply impressed by the ability and efficiency of the Secretaries of the Society. Their task is vast; their field is the United States; their minds must be fixed upon a hundred problems having to do with the interests of the churches from the Atlantic to the Pacific. These problems range all the way from petty but disturbing questions of the adjustment of individuals to their particular fields to largest questions of policy. These men must carry in mind innumerable details, the neglect of any of which might bring injustice to individuals or criticism upon the Society. The office force in New York is under their care, but they must not underestimate the difficulties which face men who are toiling in Texas, New Mexico, or Utah. They must consider the needs of individual immigrants at Ellis Island while they are striving to help the Superintendents in such vast areas as the Dakotas and Montana to keep the statesman's grip upon the issues which have to do with the welfare of sovereign states. While all these things are being done, the Secretaries must also cultivate the friendly interest of our churches in the great work, and inspire individuals and churches to generosity and self-sacrifice.

It is a mighty task which we place upon the Secretaries of the Home Missionary Society. It is truly Pauline in its range and intensity. But it is impressive to observe how adequately and efficiently these men are taking up and carrying the task. Upon the Executive Committee, when the Directors are not in session, rests the ultimate responsibility of shaping the policies of the Society and of passing judgment upon many details of administration. But this work is greatly lightened and the way is often made clear by the notable familiarity with the facts which our Secretaries have, and their ability to throw light upon difficult situations.

The churches may feel safe in trusting their interests and the administration of their gifts to the hands of men who, to those who work with them closely and frequently, reveal themselves as thoroughly adequate to their tasks and deeply consecrated to their ideals.

SECRETARY SMITH OF NEW HAMPSHIRE

WHILE the Superintendents, Secretaries, and Directors of the Home Missionary Society were in session at the semi-annual meeting at Chicago, the representatives of the New Hampshire churches gathered at the South Church, Concord, for the last services of faith and affection around the body of one who had been a friendly and stimulating presence at the conferences of home missionary workers in other years.

Rev. Edwin Ray Smith served the New Hampshire Home Missionary Society as Secretary for seven years, and at the incorporation of the State Conference last May he was elected to the additional office of Secretary of that body. In his work he developed administrative ability of a high order and gained the confidence and affection of his fellow workers. With patience, tact, and enthusiasm, he met the difficulties in the many fields. His initiative enlarged the work of the society and made the functions of his office more significant. The larger churches regarded his counsel and responded to his appeals. The depleted fields and new immigrant groups, together with their pastors, were objects of his warm sympathy and solicitude. While enthusiastically devoted to the work in hand, he was a Christian of wide vision. The work of the national Society was always an object of his care, and he felt himself to be a fellow worker with all who sought to establish the kingdom of God throughout the world.

His devotion to his Master's service in the office to which he was called was unmistakable. He put aside repeated offers to take up work that promised large financial returns and ease of life. In all he presented the spectacle of an immortal man, established in righteousness, and developing in wisdom, love, and power.

Mr. Smith was born into a minister's family at Lynn, Massachusetts, in 1865. He was graduated from Williams College in1887. After filling a high school principalship he entered Andover Seminary, from which he was graduated in 1892. He was a member of the Andover Band that co-operated in home missionary work in Maine, and, later, he held pastorates in Farmington, Maine, and in Lowell, Massachusetts. His vigorously-prosecuted work and apparent good health were interrupted in the late summer by a lung trouble which was baffling, and which in the end proved to be malignant. He died, January 18, at Brookline, Massachusetts, some days after an operation. His wife and two young sons survive him. Mrs. Smith is a niece of the late General O. O. Howard and the daughter of Rev. R. B. Howard, a former secretary of the American Peace Society.

For six months Mr. Smith fought with the hidden powers of darkness. There was no relief or discharge in that warfare. The outcome could only be defeat, but he met the situation in such a temper of soul that the encounter was lifted on to the plane of spiritual warfare. In this case came to pass the saying, "Death is swallowed in victory."

Thankful for his life and service, and deeply mourning his loss, New Hampshire is grateful for the fellowship in sorrow of the men of the sister states, whose message from Chicago read, "His comradeship in our common service has always been most helpful and endearing. Blessed is his memory, not only in New Hampshire, but throughout our entire fellowship."

CHANGES IN THE SUPERINTENDENCY

SOUTH CENTRAL DISTRICT

BEGINNING February first, Rev. Albert E. Ricker, D.D., undertakes the care of our work in the states of Oklahoma, Texas, Arkansas, and Louisiana. For seven years Dr. Ricker has conducted the missionary work of the states of New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, and Maryland with such marked success that the Directors of the Home Missionary Society unanimously and heartily voted to extend the invitation for this larger work to him. This is an abundantly-deserved promotion, which, at the same time, serves to preserve for the work of the Society the invaluable assets of experience resulting from the long previous service.

In March, 1907, Dr. Ricker was called to the superintendency of the work in Indiana. In April, 1908, he was advanced to the larger field of the Middle Atlantic District. A great many perplexities have confronted us in this region. The work in Pennsylvania is divided distinctly into three districts—one around Pittsburgh, the second around Philadelphia, and the third in the anthracite coal basins. In all three of these sections our endeavors have been outnumbered in strength and members by other denominations, both Protestant and Catholic, in the midst of which it has not always been easy for us to carry forward the work we should rightly be expected to do. Dr. Ricker's district has included, furthermore, the vastly populous and large foreign regions lying just west of the Hudson and tributary to the New York metropolitan section. This latter territory alone contains more people than the entire combined populations of several great Western states.

The most superficial examination of this field would show that because of reasons of historical origin, because of diversities of population, and because of the general lack of emphasis upon "the Congregational way" throughout this district, the Superintendent's work is one calling for ample patience, unfailing tact, and a sanity of judgment that can not be overthrown. It is these qualities that have made Dr. Ricker's administration so highly satisfactory to the churches in his district, as well as to the Directors of the Society.

We are not at this writing able to give a permanent address to which correspondence intended for the Superintendent of the South Central District may be sent: but temporarily the churches of the district can reach Dr. Ricker by sending mail to him in care of Rev. C. G. Murphy, 328 Noble Avenue, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

MIDDLE ATLANTIC DISTRICT

Rev. C. W. Carroll, Superintendent of the Middle Atlantic District, assumes the missionary responsibility for the states formerly included within that grouping, to which has been added Virginia. This addition has been made in recognition of the fact that the few churches we have in Virginia have their associational relationships toward Washington, and all but one of them are suburban to Washington.

Nearly two years ago the New Jersey Missionary Society called Mr. Carroll to care not only for all the home missionary interests of the denomination in that state, but also to serve as pastor-at-large for every church within the commonwealth. In this relationship Mr. Carroll was nominally for New Jersey what we ordinarily designate a general missionary. His success in the care of the churches confided to him was uniformly sound, and, in several cases, positively brilliant. About a year ago Mr. Carroll was asked to add to his New Jersey duties the supervision of the city missionary interests of Philadelphia. Later our Executive Committee requested him to extend his labors to include Baltimore and the District of Columbia. Upon the removal of Dr. Ricker, Mr. Carroll is obviously his logical successor as Superintendent of the entire district. The New Jersey Society has very generously consented to the larger call upon the time and strength of their pastor-at-large.

It is further contemplated by the Directors of the Society that in due season there shall be appointed to serve in Pennsylvania an able man to assist Mr. Carroll, who, working with the Superintendent and the Pennsylvania State Committee, will be able greatly to strengthen the missionary interests and the entire church life of the state. Mr. Carroll's address will remain as heretofore—Burnett Court, East Orange, New Jersey.

It is the earnest hope of the Home Missionary Society that this new arrangement for the Middle Atlantic District, even though it roughly break many intimate and helpful ties, will be able abundantly to continue the fine policies commenced by Dr. Ricker, and, as far as Pennsylvania goes, add to it in larger measure the advantages of the office of pastor-at-large for the benefit of all the churches, both aided and self-supporting. Thus may be carried into the whole district the happy experience of the last two years in New Jersey, constituting a definite and valuable forward movement.

During the ten months, $20,360.53 was paid by the national Society to Constituent State Societies on the percentage plan. Deducting this from the total contributions of $72,573.27 and adding the amount received on percentage division from Constituent State Societies—$31,363.05—gives $83,575.79 as the receipts from living donors available for The Congregational Home Missionary Society in its nation-wide work, as compared with $84,160.30 last year, a loss of $584.51. Last month showed a gain of $4,038.85, making the net loss of the month $4,623.36.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO?

At the end of nine months of our fiscal year we were $4,038.85 ahead in contributions. At the end of ten months we are $584.51 behind. Does the loss in one month of 1915 of $4,623.36 mean that we are to expect decidedly lower receipts in 1915 than in 1914? If so, what ought we to do? The increase in legacy receipts is not wholly available for current expenses. These receipts cannot take the place of gifts from the living. In January, 1914, the Directors voted a cut of $32,000.00 in appropriations for missionary labor, in view of threatened debt. Shall we make a further cut or risk the debt?

WHAT WE PLAN TO DO.

On January 20th, the Directors voted the same budget for the next year as for the last, with the prayer that receipts would make it possible to meet it. Should a debt threaten after faithful effort has been made to meet the budget, the Directors will doubtless convene and order the cessation of new work and a further cut in present work in the belief that our constituents do not wish us to overspend our income.

WHAT YOU CAN DO.

You can reduce your gifts for Christianizing America because times are unpropitious. You can keep them the same as last year with some added self-denial. You can increase them with still greater self-sacrifice, that the men and women on the "firing line," who are always sacrificing, need not feel the knife again. You can join your prayers with ours that increasing Christian generosity may make possible advance rather than retreat.

PRIMARY MOTIVES

THE temptation is strong in the advocacy of missions to place in the forefront the contribution which they make to civilization and culture, and to appeal on this ground for increased support. The contribution is real, but it is only an incidental result of missionary work. To enlarge upon it may interest thoughtful people, but wholehearted and enthusiastic workers for the cause can be won only by directing attention to the heart and inner spring of the movement. There is no vitalizing energy in secondary motives.

This quotation from the London Chronicle leads us to ask if there is not a like temptation in some Missionary Schools to fail to accentuate the absolute importance of constant regard for the evangelistic purpose, and so to fail in the full service of personal evangelism. The educational and intellectual needs are so evident, vital and pressing that the emphasis upon the truths and the lessons for the spirit may be too little considered. If there may be this tendency in the literature and advocacy of missions, we trust that none of our Missionary Schools will forget the first and greatest need. A great place must be held for service that is personally and actively religious.

THE STORY OF A BLANKET INDIAN MISSION*

IN a diary of uncommon interest have the experiences and observations in Indian missionary service on the part of a Christian woman for something more than ten years.

Miss Isabel Crawford devoted herself, the only white person much of the time, among Kiowas of the Wachita Mountains in California. On her arrival she found one Indian, who had been taken by Captain Pratt to the United States Government Indian School at Carlisle and named Lucius. He could speak English fairly well and had been at Carlisle long enough to absorb many ideas of civilization; long enough to make him welcome the lone lady missionary and to act as her interpreter; but not long enough to free himself from the inheritances of Indian character and tradition. He could read and write after his manner, and on his return from school to his tribe and lived mostly as Indians do. Lucius soon became a hopeful convert; began a Christian life and became the immediate assistant to the brave woman who undertook the mission and carried it out with devotion, greatly helped by ready wit and an uncommon common sense. The story throughout is full of charm and quotable on many pages. By permission of the publishers, Fleming H. Revell Co., we give a sample not only interesting in the study of gospel leaven in ignorant souls but as light upon Indian traits and character.

"In the evening I gave this talk to the camp. 'The Great Father wants us to work with Him. He made the seed and put life into it. White man could make something that would look like corn but they couldn't put life into it and it wouldn't come up. When you plant the Great Father's seed He sends the sun and the rain to encourage you and makes it grow. He does the hardest part. If you love Him you will try to please Him and do yours. He could have sent 'women-with-wings' (angels) to plough for you and carry the Gospel to others, but He did not.

What would we do to show Him that we love Him if angels did everything? He wants you to plough and to plant and give the spiritual seed to others, and He promises to take good care of you all the way along. Those who ploughed to-day have made His heart glad.'"

In this way she insisted at once upon introducing work among the Indians, very much to their often expressed disgust. It is a long story, through the earlier years in which she insisted and they demurred that the Indians should learn to work, but she finally succeeded. Her ultimate purpose, however, was to bring these Indians to a personal knowledge and experience of Christ, and ultimately to establish a church. To effect this latter purpose she proposed that it should be built entirely by the Indians, and that they themselves should also support the mission. The story of these lessons in self-support and of their development in Christian life, is graphically given in the diary.

"A wagon filled with a whole family drove furiously up to the gospel tent, and as soon as the singing and prayer were over, Doybi arose and said: "May I talk first this morning? The devil has beaten me awful bad and I told him I was going to come right over to the gospel tent to tell on him. Three weeks ago he knocked me down. You all know how hard I have tried since I became a Christian. It was after payment and they were gambling in my tent. All night they gambled and I laid down with the blanket over my head and asked Jesus to help me not to get up and gamble. That time I beat the devil. I didn't gamble. Next day I said to my wife: 'Now we must go home to-day, for I want to get away from the temptations.' She said: 'The Bible says we are to obey our parents, and they say we are going to stay here and gamble some more, so if you want to go to Saddle Mountain you can go by yourself for I won't go with you.' This made me awful mad and I took hold of my wife and shook her and knocked her down. I stood there for a while and began to think of Jesus, and how sorry I was, for I love my poor wife very much. Then I remembered some of Jesus' words and I prayed and asked Him to forgive me and help me not to do such a bad thing again. The devil is mean. If he can't catch you on one road he will catch you on another. I was watching the gamble-road and he caught me another way. I have come to-day to tell all my brothers and sisters about it. I am not discouraged. Let us all keep close to Jesus and follow Him all the way through."

Papedone was on his feet at once. "We have all heard about this before and we felt 'shamed for Doybi. When I heard it first my heart felt just like sick. Now if he had not been truly converted he wouldn't have come here this morning to tell on himself and the devil. It is because he is a Christian that he has come here and asked us to wipe it out. We are all one family and our brother has done wrong. He has asked Jesus to forgive him and he has asked us to pray for him. He can't do no more. I will kneel down now and thank Jesus because Doybi has got the real Jesus road in his heart. If he had not he would not have come here to talk."

Queototi arose. "I'm an old man," he said, "and have done a lot of work for the devil. He gave me bullets for it and I carry them in my body yet. I am thankful that Jesus has saved me. My dear wife has gone on to life with Him and I have brought her last Jesus money. I am afraid I have made a mistake on the Jesus road and I want to tell you about it. I try to stay home for Jesus' sake, but I have no one to cook for me now and I often get very hungry. A while back I was so hungry I did not know what to do so I went over to Hunting Horse's to get something to eat. He was not home and I was so hungry. I prayed and asked Jesus what to do and then I went back home and met the pigs running all over. I was very hungry so I prayed to Jesus again and said: 'Jesus, I am hungry, and these pigs belong to my cousin. He is not at home or I would ask him for one. I am going to catch one and kill it and eat it, but I don't want to steal, so I ask you to look at me.' Then I watched the pigs go by and I catched the littlest one and killed it and ate it. Now I am afraid those not Christians will point at me and say: 'Queototi is a Christian and he stole a pig,' and then all my brothers and sisters will feel 'shamed. I tell you about it so you won't let the news spread. I was hungry and took the pig but I did not steal it. I asked Jesus to look at me. What do you think? Was it wrong for me to kill that pig and eat it?"

Before I could reply Heenkey sprang up. "If this spreads, the others will say he stole the pig. The deacons should pay for it." Queototi's gray head sank on his breast, his eyes suffused with tears and his whole frame shook. I went over to him and said: "You dear old man, no, it was not wrong for you to take that pig. You did not steal it. Jesus knows all about it. Hunting Horse would have given it to you gladly if he had been at home. We all love you and know you are trying to follow Jesus with all your heart. You must not feel badly any more. I will pay for the pig just to make you feel happy again."

Gahbein: "We all must feel that Queototi did right. Don't let us speak it out. We all must feel that he tried to be honest in the Jesus road."

Poor old man! How his drooping head lifted itself up after these kind talks and at dinner every one brought him the best they had. "Confessing your faults one to another" is the very best way to strengthen "the tie that binds."

"November 18th, Sunday. Splendid attendance, attention and testimonies. Here are some of the talks.

(1) "The Great Father has forgiven my sins and given me a house to sit down in. When we come over the lonesome road and see other houses with nobody in them we feel sorry because all the Great Father's 'kind' is losted. Once I got up to talk for Jesus at another place and the Jesus man sang to make me stop talking. It was the devil that told him to sing so I talked on for Jesus and beat them both."

(2) "The Ghost-Dance Indians think that Jesus is coming back here to live and will give them back their dead and their buffalo. It is not true. Jesus will never sit down here again. When He comes next time He will come to judge everything. He will put the sheep Christians on one side, and the goat Christians on the other and then bust up this whole business and take the Christians and little children up to heaven."

(3) "The old roads are passing away. How glad I am that I was not born a long time ago. I remember the war-path and the buffalo. The Indians went all round fighting and taking scalps. Once they brought a black man's scalp home and put it up in a tree. I was so skeered I could hardly sleep and dreamed about it. Now how different it is. How thankful I am that Jesus sent the missionaries to tell us the Gospel. The old roads are passing away and how happy the Jesus road is."

(4) "No matter how far the devil chases me I will come back to Jesus. He drove me to gamble this payment but I held tight four dollars for Jesus. I don't know why I am so wicked. Sometimes I get awful mad at my husband and scold him and kick him and abuse him, but after my heart gets quiet I always forgive him."

(5) "When you told us Jesus wanted us to forgive our enemies I thought of Paudlekeah right off. My heart is turned against him and I cannot turn it back myself. I tried but when I went up to him I felt so mad I couldn't speak so I shook hands. After awhile I think that I will be able to go and pray with him and then the bad will all go out of my heart, but 'tain't gone yet."

(6) "I am surprised to hear all these good words about being kind to everybody and not to lie or steal or give bad talk. I been thinking all that before I heard the Jesus road. I believe also the Great Father wants us to work and earn our living."

(7) "When Sunday comes we all know it now. We are learning something new right along. I have found out this: If anybody is against us we should shut up our mouths because we are Christians. A while back I made a mistake and want to tell my brothers and sisters about it. A calf died and my wife and I went to see if we could cut some meat off it. When we got back home the key was lost and my wife and I began to abuse each other. She packed up and said she was going to leave me. I stood looking at her, burning in my heart and I said to her, 'The devil is leading you all right.' The tears ran down my cheeks but she started and I was left alone. When she got as far as Sugar Creek the Holy Spirit came into her heart and told her to go back to her husband so she turned back. We did not feel good for several days, but one day when we were eating a watermelon we got all right. It was the devil that got in between us and tried to pull us apart, but Jesus is stronger than the devil. This is how I have been serving Jesus."

(8) The wife: "I have a bad temper and the devil chases me all the time. Before we built our house we kept happy going round. The way I got mad was this: He is the man and he lost the key and I told him he done it. Then he said something and I said something back and we kept on talking at each other. Then I said, 'Now I'm mad and I ain't going to get over it. I'm going to leave you.' I started but when I remembered my talks over here I knew it was the devil and I pulled my horses away and came back. I know I done wrong and I felt I should come to tell it. I said to the devil: 'You knocked me down all right and beat me but you ain't going to keep me down. I'm going to get up and tell on you.' This is what we done last week for Jesus."

"A camp-meeting followed the payment at Rainy Mountain Mission eight miles from the school. Spotted Horse (a future deacon), was baptized and Lucius made the following remarkable talk:

"I want to make two talks. In the first place to the new Christians and the second place to the old ones. I understand Jesus has a book and He has written your names down in it who were baptized to-day. When a white man wants to send a message to Washington he sends a telegram. You must send a message to Jesus often to help you. Every day send Him a message very often and to-night before you go to sleep thank Him for writing your names in His everlasting book. It is a long way up high but He will hear you.

Now I will say a few words to the old Christians. Some of you are very near asleep but I want you to rub open your eyes and listen. The devil puts you to sleep so you can't hear God's words. You been hearing a lot about Ghost-Dance and mescal but I will tell you some more. We all ought to be honest Christians but we are not. Some of you hide your money and do not pay your store bills. You been stealing from the traders when you don't pay up and I am 'shamed of you. Some of you keep away from your store bills and buy things for your body, so when others see you they will say 'How-look-pretty-you-are;' This is not right. The devil makes you do it but Jesus wants you to pay up.

When you get your grass money you should first lay by some for Jesus, then go and pay up your store bills and spend what is over on yourselves. When you don't pay up the traders are mad and I feel awful 'shamed when I hear them talk about you. Another thing, I want you to remember that you have a new road altogether. You have houses and homes and you must live in them and keep them clean. You should clean up the yard every day and the house and keep at it, keep at it, keep at it and never get tired.

Another thing, when my shirt has a little hole in it I ask my wife to put a patch on it. It is not right to buy new things all the time. We all have some old clothes and we don't throw them away. We keep washing, washing twice a week. Jesus gives us water free, and soap, and you men ought to help your wives to wash and keep the children clean. I wash for Mabel often, and it isn't hard work. We don't buy new things all the time. We keep washing, washing, washing and mending till the things get too old and then we don't throw them away; we make dish rags and try all the time.

Some of you wear your shirts till they get dirty and then throw them away and get new ones, and that is why your store bills are so large. I want you to have one good suit of clothes for all your children for Sunday and for yourselves and when you come home put them away. I had this suit three years but I take care of it.

Another thing, I want you men and women to be kind to each other. Some of you get mad and talk back. When your husband is mad and talks cross to you make your hearts strong and don't say anything, and pretty soon he will be sorry and say to you: 'My dear wife, I did wrong when I gave you bad-talk; will you forgive me?' and how happy you will be; but if you talk back you will both get mad and it will get worse and worse.

My brothers and my sisters, let us try hard to be clean on the Jesus road. Let us keep our hearts clean, and then our clothes and our children, for the Jesus road is a clean road and we have to keep at it all the time or the devil will make us dirty again.

The old road has passed away and we have a new road altogether."

The "old road" had now so far "passed away" that after ten years of plucky Christian love the heroic little lady had a church erected, with sixty members organized and working, not only in self support but contributing to mission causes. Indolent Indians had learned to work; superstition had yielded to practical faith, teepes had become horses, and the gospel of Christ had once more proved itself the power of God unto salvation.

In a regular and orderly way these Kiowa Indians who ten years before were in nearly absolute spiritual darkness, now met to call a pastor.

In response to a special call the church assembled and Lucius made the following statement:

"Ever since this church was organized many of you have wanted me to be the pastor. I've only been to school four years, so I told you that I did not want you to push me in. I knew that Jesus would talk to my heart if He wanted me to do this work, and that is why I held myself back. I wanted to hear His voice first and I kept thinking, thinking, thinking, and praying a whole lot. It was at Watonga I heard the whisper first. I had been thinking very carefully, and I thought this: 'If I am pastor all the boys who went to school and are smart will laugh at me and the Ghost-Dance people too.' But my heart said: 'Never mind if they do; you will be a great help to your people.' When I felt this I said: 'No use for me to be afraid to work for Jesus and my people.' Then Jesus spoke to my heart and this is what He said: 'Lucius, you have worked for Me many years and picked up my words right along. I want you to do this work for Me.' When I heard this my heart just shook. It moved and hit very fast and then I knew that God had called me. Look at me. How poor I am to serve the Lord. I am not fit to be the pastor of this church but if Jesus wants me to be I'm willing. I have spoken."

FIRST AMERICANS

THERE are some 300,000 Indians in the United States. This grand total includes all who are of Indian blood or who have been adopted with the tribes. The census of 1910 shows an Indian population of 304,950 as contrasted with that of 1860 of 254,300.

They have land aggregating in extent 109,150 square miles or a territory equal to that of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Kentucky and Virginia. Many thousands are entirely self supporting and thrifty. These have come to sensible living chiefly through missionary efforts. Many more thousands cling as yet to the traditions of the past; they are opposed to progress and content to live without work and without responsibility, with the aid and pressure of the United States Government, and especially with the wise and sympathetic instruction of Christian missionaries more and more they are learning to work, and learning to work out their own salvation, though it is "with fear and trembling."

THE INDIAN IN THE WORLD OF COMPETITION

By Sherman Coolidge, A full blooded Indian of the Arapaho Tribe and President of the Society of American Indians

THE Indian in the world of competition is a subject that probably seldom occurs to American citizens; yet here and there we see the original American who has seized his opportunity and struggled upward in the face of the public opinion, now vanishing, that he lacks capacity for advancement. During the past fifty years, Christian men and women, charitable institutions and organizations, the Church and the state, have taken individuals and groups to the school house and the chapel, and the Indian American has responded to the "magic touch of opportunity" by taking up his share of the task and becoming a worker, a thinker, and a producer. He is daily demonstrating the fact that he can win position, influence and wealth by the labor of his hands and by the efforts of his educated brain.

When our white friends come in contact with the progressive type of the nation's wards they are likely to exclaim: "Oh, but you are an exception!" Happily the exceptions now-a-days are multiplying by hundreds each year, thanks to the peace policy inaugurated by General Grant's administration. It was not until then that the country seemed to realize the futility of trying to civilize the native at the point of bayonet or fire religion into him with a gatling gun. Was it the influence of General Ely S. Parker, the Seneca Chief, that brought about the change of policy? It would not surprise us if it was by his advice, as he was Commissioner of Indian Affairs under President Grant; and with patriotic pride we remember that he was also on Grant's staff as military secretary, and that the terms of peace which brought North and South together and ended the Civil War are recorded in the handwriting of an Indian.

We can mention only a few of those who, through all but insuperable obstacles, have won their way in the world of competition. By their trades, professions and commercial interests they exhibit their ability to capitalize their education and gain a living. Senator Owen, a Cherokee, was Chairman of the Senate Committee that revised the whole financial system for a nation of one hundred million people. Hon. Charles Curtis, of the Kaw tribe, was sent to represent Kansas in United States Senate, not by Indians, but by white voters of the state. Hon. Charles D. Carter, a Choctaw, and the Hon. Mr. Hastings, a Cherokee, were elected by white constituents to represent them in the lower house of Congress; and these are not the only ones of Indian blood in the Senate and House of Representatives. Outside the halls of Congress we have Indians in Government service, among them being Hon. Gabe Parker, a Choctaw, Registrar of the United States Treasury, and Hon. Charles E. Dagenett, a Peoria, United States Supervisor of Indian Employment. In the civil life, we have Mr. Arthur C. Parker, a Seneca Archæologist of the State of New York; Mr. John M. Oskison, A. M., a Cherokee, editor, writer and late Associate Editor of Collier's; Charles A. Eastman, M. D., A. M., Sioux, author and lecturer; Carlos Montezuma, B. S., M. D., a full-blooded Apache, specialist and practicing physician for years in Chicago; Mr. Charles Bender, Chippewa, dealer in baseball and sporting goods in Philadelphia; Rev. Henry Roe-Cloud, A. B., B. D., Winnebago, minister of the Gospel; Mr. H. C. Ashmun, full-blood Chippewa, newspaper proprietor and editor; Dr. Caleb Sickles, Oneida, dentist at Tiffin, Ohio; Hon. W. J. Kershaw, Menominee tribe, a successful and popular attorney in Milwaukee; Mr. Charles Buck, Blackfoot tribe, stockman; Mr. Charles H. Kealear, Sioux, merchant at Arapahoe, Wyo.

It is said that no race can be better than its women, and the Indian men have always acknowledged the need of the feminine mind to help guide them into higher and better ways. The Indian woman has been viewed by her white brothers and sisters as a beast of burden and a much abused drudge. Truth told, she is a force to reckon with among the tribes now as in the past, in religion, politics and social life. And the Indian women never have complained of the racial system of division of labor. Sometimes a brave threw his wife away; now and again a wife left her husband for a wealthier man; for the sake of social advancement, a young girl was compelled very occasionally to marry a man she did not want. These things happen, too, among the superior palefaces.

Angel De Cora Deitz, of the Winnebago tribe, and her work in the world of Art are well known; she also teaches in the Carlisle Indian School. Miss Helen Clard, a Piegan, is an elocutionist of note who has delighted her audiences everywhere. Miss Nancy Seneca, a Chippewa, is doing fine work on the Pawnee Reservation in Oklahoma as a professional nurse. Mrs. Marie L. B. Baldwin, LL. B., another Chippewa, is employed in the Indian Office at Washington, D. C. Mrs. Rosa B. La Flesche, Winnebago, is in the Indian Service and located at the Rosebud Agency, South Dakota; she has the distinction of being one of the original six who organized the Society of American Indians. Most of the men and women mentioned in this article are members of that organization, whose function is to work for the uplift and welfare of the race. These first Americans have succeeded uncommonly well and now mingle with the best in business and social life. Bear in mind, however, the fact that every white man is not a success, neither will every Indian be a success. Any plan of organization, any consistent method of work that will enable the Church or the Government to add a host of forceful, worthy men and women, is worth adopting and should receive every support. Enough has been developed to show that the noble red man who formerly dwelt in a wigwam is becoming the dweller in marble halls; the plumed warrior of the plains is being transformed into the captain of industry and the soldier of the Cross.

THE CRY OF A RACE

Professor William H. Walker, D.D., Talladega College, Alabama

Out of a night of bitter woe,
Drenched with the dew of tears,
Out of the pang of a nation's throe,
Brothers struggling as foe to foe,
A race new born appears.

Empty of brain and empty of hand,
Facing the battle of life—
Round them a war-swept, desolate land,
Wealth they had wrought by a magic wand,
Vanished in desperate strife.

Forth from their ranks comes a pleading cry,
Begging for light and power,
"Be not Levite or priest passing by.
Give to our children your light so high,
Knowledge and truth as dower."

Half a century now has fled
Bringing its toil and pain.
Patiently they have wrought and bled,
Steadily gazed toward the light ahead,
Has it been all in vain?

All that they ask is the common lot,
Rights of a brother man,
Use of the gifts God grudgeth not,
Talents and powers of his love begot,
Serving the world as they can.

INDIANS AND NEGROES

Dr. William Hayes Ward

THE American Missionary Association has two pre-eminent tasks that appeal to its constituency. One is to educate the Negro millions of slaves and their offspring; the next is to civilize the thousands of the red race. The conditions of the two races are very different. The black race has behind it the history of servitude, and is handicapped by all the prejudices which attend the condition of slaves. The other has never been enslaved, but when wronged has fought to the death. It suffers from no such centuries of humiliation and insult and wrong, with the race prejudice that attends race servitude. From the beginning we have honored the noble red man. The first families of Virginia have been proud of Indian blood. General Logan claimed to be of Indian descent and he looked it. At the present time both our Senate and our House of Representatives embrace men of Indian birth. No shame attaches to their origin. We treat Indians far better than we do Negroes. Our Government does nothing for the Negroes as it does for the Indians. Our Churches are doing more per capita for the Indians than for the Negroes. Not too much—we ought to do more for both; but I approve the sentiment that sees something very attractive in the makers of Navàjo blankets, Indian baskets, bead-work, moccasins, and thinks of them as of the race after which we name our states and our towns and rivers. Let that sentiment still encourage us to hasten the time of their full brotherly amalgamation with the rest of us in our churches and at the ballot box. Then shall we atone for King Philip's War and a long succession of Indian wars, even down to the Wisconsin massacre and the Custer massacre, and the soul of Massasoit who brought corn to the starving Pilgrims of Plymouth shall rest in peace; for the Indian must be made a Christian American citizen and man with the rest of us, and shame on those who would preserve him in his moccasins and feathers, in his beads and bows and arrows, and his pagan sun-dance as a human specimen of primitive culture for the delectation of the curious ethnologist, and the gaping visitors of a Wild West show.

A NEGRO DOCTOR OVERCOMES RACE PREJUDICE

I. Garland Penn, in the S. W. Christian Advocate

A NEGRO doctor boarded a Pullman car in a certain city near the famous Mason-Dixon Line en route to his home in a certain Southern state.

On entering the car he was the object of conversation and ridicule by a few Anglo-Saxons from John C. Calhoun's state who were not accustomed to thus riding with the Negro. Much was said by the South Carolinians about the Negro for his benefit but the Negro was of the sort to grin and bear trusting that the Lord would take him through, as often colored men do under similar circumstances. The limited sped along at a fifty mile an hour gait when all at once a hundred miles down the line one of the South Carolinians was taken seriously ill with acute indigestion and the conversation and ridicule of the Negro ceased and turned to inquire if a physician was aboard the train. When every white passenger aboard had been questioned, the South Carolinian reached the Negro and blurted out, "Are you a preacher or a doctor?" The Negro answered politely but assuringly, "I am a physician and surgeon." "Well," said the South Carolinian, "help this man."

The Negro physician said, "Gentlemen, your conversation when I first came in the car put me in a very embarrassing position. I have been anxious to serve your friend but afraid to offer my services. It will please me to do all I can." The Negro physician proceeded to relieve the sufferer, see that he was taken to his berth and ministered unto during the night. "No charges," was the reply made when money was offered, for the physician reminded them he was in this case a good Samaritan. The next morning the patient was in good condition, barring weakness, the party happy and the relieved one thankful.

The Negro physician having been up during the night, slept rather late the next morning, but the party even though speeding through North Carolina, wanted the Negro physician to breakfast with them in the dining car on the first call. The South Carolinian went to his berth, got the doctor up and took him into the diner and ate with him. The doctor ate a meal forty miles long, so he says, and never had a better time in all his life than with John C. Calhoun's people. These essentials to progress possessed and demonstrated and waiting one's opportunity wins non-essentials. Man's extremity is God's opportunity.

REV. DR. GRIMKE, OF WASHINGTON, WRITES TO THE .. PRESIDENT

HON. WOODROW WILSON,
President of the U. S.

Dear Sir:

As an American citizen I desire to enter my earnest protest against the disposition, under your Administration, to segregate colored people in the various departments of the Government. To do so is undemocratic, is un-American, is un-Christian, is needlessly to offend the self-respect of the loyal black citizens of the Republic. We constitute one-tenth of the population, and, under the Constitution, have the same rights and are entitled to the same consideration as other citizens. We had every reason to hope, from your high Christian character, and from your avowal of lofty principles prior to your election, that your accession to power would act as a check upon the brutal and insane spirit of race hatred that characterizes certain portions of the white people of the country. As American citizens we have a right to expect the President of the United States to stand between us and those who are bent on forcing us into a position of inferiority. Under the Constitution, resting upon the broad foundation of democratic principles as embodied in the Declaration of Independence, there are no superiors and inferiors. Before the law all citizens are equal, and are entitled to the same consideration. May we not expect—have we not the right to expect—that your personal influence, as well as the great influence which comes from your commanding official position, will be thrown against what is clearly, is distinctly, not in accordance with the spirit of free institutions? All class distinctions among citizens are un-American, and the sooner every vestige of it is stamped out the better it will be for the Republic.

Yours truly,

FRANCIS J. GRIMKE.

THE CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH BUILDING SOCIETY

Office: 287 Fourth Avenue, New York.

General Secretary, Charles H. Richards, D.D., Treasurer, Charles H. Baker.

Field Secretaries, William W. Newell, D.D., 19 La Salle Street, Chicago, Ill.; William W. Leete, D.D., Room 611, Congregational House, Boston, Mass.; Rev. H. H. Wikoff, 417 Market Street, San Francisco, Cal.; Assistant Field Secretaries, Mrs. C. H. Taintor, Clinton, Conn., and Rev. J. P. Sanderson, D.D., Chicago.

Our Board was able at its February meeting to vote three parsonage loans, two of which were emergency cases where our aid will save the churches from serious difficulty. It also voted three church grants and four church loans. One of the grants was to a church whose building had been destroyed by fire.

April is Young People's month for this Society. During that month, by agreement among all the Benevolent Societies, the Christian Endeavor Societies and the Sunday-schools are asked to send their contributions to us to help in church and parsonage building.

A FLIGHT FROM LAKE MICHIGAN TO THE PACIFIC

THE wide reach of the Church Building Society is shown in the fact that last year it paid last bills on churches and parsonages in thirty-eight states. Reserving for another time the eastern part of the country, let us take a little journey across the continent from Lake Michigan to the Pacific. More than a hundred churches and thirty parsonages in that section were secured by the helping hand of this

CONGREGATIONAL CHURCH, CHALLIS, IDAHO

Society in 1914. We can get a glimpse of but a half dozen of these on this trip, but they are good examples of our work.

In Racine, Wisconsin, Plymouth Church was long known as the Welsh Church. Established by a warm-hearted and liberty-loving group of earnest Christians from that part of Great Britain which Lloyd George, Christmas Evans and others have made illustrious, they loved the mother-tongue and the methods of worship they had been accustomed to in the old country. But their children grew up Americans preferring the language and methods of the new country. So there was a gradual transformation into the likeness of our other Congregational Churches. Our First Church is on the other side of the river which divides the city. Many people of the Pilgrim stock on the west side could not worship with the Welsh Church on account of the difference in language, and went into the Presbyterian Church. Our church, however, outgrew its old needs and methods. English became the language used in its services. Its members came to include a good many of the leading citizens and families of Racine. It changed its name to "Plymouth Church." It outgrew its old building, and made plans for a new and up-to-date house of worship. Then they called upon the Church Building Society for a lift. Years ago it had given a little grant to this church from the "Albany Fund." Now it was asked to assist on a larger scale, and it paid last bills last year on a beautiful edifice which with its lot cost more than $45,000. This represents a sacrifice and devotion on the part of the people there which is worthy of all praise. The Rev. A. J. Buxton is their pastor and leader, and in the new beautiful auditorium he is preaching to increasing numbers who gather there for worship and service.

It is a far flight from the shore of Lake Michigan to the Rocky Mountains, but it brings us to Denver, Colorado, Englewood Church. In this brilliant and beautiful city, a hard struggle to secure a house of worship, but they kept at it heroically, gave toward the building fund till it hurt, and called on their brethren in the city Congregational Union for their sympathy and assistance. Their plea was not in vain, and when they turned to the Church Building Society also to lend a hand they met with a warm welcome. A generous grant and loan went to them to express the fellowship of all mile above sea level, where the sun shines three hundred days in the year, we have seventeen churches, every one of which has in some period of its history received the helping hand of this society. In a growing suburban section of the city is the Englewood Church, which developed from a Sunday-school into a substantial and promising church. For a long time they had a the churches of our denomination.

Another westward flight takes us over the crest of the Rockies, and we land in Challis, Idaho. This is the county seat of Custer County which is half as large as the state of Connecticut. It was an old mining town, but that industry has declined and it is the distributing center for a wide region. The scream of the locomotive does not disturb the five hundred people of this village neighborhood, for the railway is many miles away. Twenty-three years ago our church was organized with two men and eleven women. They built with our aid a good log church, seating a hundred people. Six years later we also helped them secure a parsonage. Six years ago the little church, which had grown to be more than a hundred, with a hundred gladly responded. A generous donor in New England, who likes to help build one church each year, which he may feel is his church, furnished one-half of this amount as a grant, and the other half was provided from our loan fund. This is the only church building in this great county, and there is no other within sixty miles. It is the only religious organization there save a families, determined to sell the old log church which was outgrown, and build a larger and better house of worship. They carried the enterprise through with success, and have a property which cost about $4,000. They were able to raise and pay all but $1,000 of this and then turned again to the Church Building Society for renewed aid. We little Mormon group which has recently started services. The women of this church are very active in its work, and claim to be seven times as many as the men. About fifty of them are in the Woman's Missionary Society and they pledge $240 a year toward the pastor's salary. They are raising funds to beautify the auditorium, and they are making the church a strong community center.

Leaving this fascinating village work we continue our flight northwest till we reach Odessa, Washington. This is one of the prominent towns on the Great Northern road, lying about midway between Spokane and Wenatchee. It is a village of a thousand people with three hundred more within three miles. It is the center of a fine farming region. Ours is the only English-speaking church there, but four German Congregational Churches within easy reach make up a fine fellowship. Until a year ago there were two English churches in the place. The Presbyterian Church was first on the field; out of this came a Methodist Church. Both were too weak to cope with the heavy debts that burdened them. Neither was willing to unite with the other and take its name; but both were willing to unite and become a Congregational Church. This they did in January, 1914, and now they have one strong Protestant English-speaking church there instead of two weak ones. The two dying churches, weary of dying, have been vitalized into vigorous life by this union. They have taken the Methodist property, worth about $7,500, and the other church building will be sold to meet indebtedness. There is a good, modern, eight-room parsonage to make the minister and his family happy. The brethren of our fellowship have given a hearty welcome to this new-comer into our sisterhood of churches, and the grant and parsonage loan from this Society puts the church strongly upon its feet.

CONGREGATIONAL PARSONAGE, ODESSA, WASH.

It is a special satisfaction to relieve an overchurched community from the burden of carrying one church too many.

"March we forth in the strength of God, with the banner of Christ unfurled,
That the light of the glorious gospel of truth may shine throughout the world;
Fight we the fight with sorrow and sin to set the captive free,
That the earth may be filled with the glory of God as the waters cover the sea.

All we can do is nothing worth unless God blesses the deed,
Vainly we hope for the harvest tide till God gives life to the seed;
Yet nearer and nearer draws the time, the time that shall surely be
When the earth shall be filled with the glory of God as the waters cover the sea."

MORMONISM AND POLYGAMY

HON. FRED T. DUBOIS, U. S. Senator from Idaho in the Christian Statesman, affirms that:

"More than half of the high officials of the church are admittedly defying the law and the Government in that they are openly living in polygamous relations. New polygamous marriages are continually being celebrated in the Mormon Church. It has been conclusively shown that apostles of the church have entered into or performed these new polygamous ceremonies since the manifesto of the church was issued, in which the church agreed solemnly to do away with polygamy. New polygamous marriages are not entered into so openly as in the days before the manifesto (1890), and men of a different character are now entering into the polygamous relation. Formerly the poor and ignorant took plural wives the same as those better off and of a higher order of intelligence. Now young men of ability are selected to enter into these relations. The brainy young men of the church are tied irrevocably to the church and made subservient to it through the polygamous relation. Whenever they contract polygamous marriages, they are without the pale of the civil law, and their only hope for protection is through this powerful church organization.....

"Under the present system, polygamous marriages are celebrated secretly and for the most part in foreign countries or beyond the jurisdiction of the United States..... Instead of, as in the old days, when polygamy was entered into indiscriminately, now the polygamists are selected, and in this way the practice is more insidious and dangerous than formerly, because a cult and aristocracy of polygamists is being built up within the church. Those in polygamy are in complete control of the organization now, and have ever been, and it is evident that under the system which they are building up they control. It is much more difficult to prove polygamy or polygamous cohabitation than formerly, because now every means is resorted to keep the facts concealed that anyone has gone into polygamy. There is no record anywhere of the plural marriages which anyone not a member of the governing body of the church has access to. It is impossible to prove a polygamous marriage because of the lack of power to prove by the records that a polygamous marriage has been celebrated. When children come as a result of plural marriages, the neighbors readily understand that the polygamous relation is being maintained, and if the power were in the State to punish, conviction could be had for unlawful cohabitation. It would be impossible, however, to prove polygamy. In fact, when the Edmunds Law was being rigidly enforced, while hundreds of convictions in Utah were secured under the provisions of that act for unlawful cohabitation, no convictions for polygamy could be prosecuted successfully because of the inability on the part of the officials to prove the plural marriage.

"A national law, passed by Congress and approved by the President, giving to the United States authorities power to prosecute for polygamy would be ineffective because there would be no possible way by which a plural marriage could be proved to the satisfaction of a judge or jury. An amendment to the Constitution giving the Federal Government power to proceed against the polygamist would not be worth the paper on which it might be written.....You cannot prove polygamy without proving the second marriage.....You can prove unlawful cohabitation. While every Mormon would be perfectly willing to see the Federal Government given jurisdiction over polygamy, you will never find a Mormon who will support an amendment to the Constitution providing for the punishment of those living in unlawful cohabitation.....

"I am led to make these remarks because proposed amendments to the Constitution are now before Congress, giving the United States jurisdiction over these polygamous offenses. The Mormons in Congress and their political sympathizers are anxious to narrow the amendment to a prosecution of polygamy, while those who understand the question insist that the Federal Government shall have jurisdiction over polygamous living. It makes all the difference in the world.

"One polygamous marriage entered into now, under the system adopted of selecting with great care those who are to go into polygamy, is more dangerous and more inimical and more subversive of law, and more degrading to womanhood, than forty such marriages entered into indiscriminately in the past."

NEED OF BOOKS

The extract given below is from a private letter sent to one of the officials of the Education Society and is introduced here in the hope that someone will be interested to send funds to the Education Society for the purpose of putting helpful books in our schools.

"Thank you very much for the three books. They form a most welcome addition to our school library. The children will enjoy them and they are all books which I shall be glad to have the children read.

There is no public library in A—, and so far as I know there is no library in the high school or grade schools.

A public library would be the greatest blessing that could be given to A—.

The young people, many of them, are rough; they spend their evenings on the street, mainly because there is no place of amusement. Twice a week there is a moving picture show and once or twice a week there is a dance.

Now if there were a library or reading room it would be a great boon.

My pupils are hungry for reading."

THE CLOSING YEAR

The fiscal year of the Sunday-School Society closed March 1st. At the present writing it is too early to sum up the items. The eleven months, for which reports have been received from the army of field workers, indicate a large and helpful service. Some changes are taking place. The co-operation between the different denominations, and the closer co-ordination in the Congregational ranks have led to stronger organizations than heretofore.

EDUCATIONAL WORK

Larger emphasis has been put upon the strengthening and developing phases, which are called educational. In the eleven months 1,049 Sunday-school institutes and conferences were held. These have not been for theorizing, but for grappling the real problems that confront the churches in relation to their Sunday-school work. Training classes for teachers have been organized, in small as well as large schools; churches have appointed committees on Religious Education; plans have been made for interesting alien peoples and reaching them. And best of all, the workers have been emphasizing Sunday-school evangelism, and striving to lead the churches in winning the young life for the Kingdom and the church.

LITERATURE

The close association of the field forces with the publishing interests, through the Editor and Educational Secretary and all departments of The Pilgrim Press, has enabled the workers to make very large use of the literature published by the Sunday-School Society. The use of the best possible literature gives hope of larger things for the future. Aid has been given to needy schools, enabling them to secure the very best. Increasing demands are made for grants of literature to schools in foreign fields, making a bond of world unity.

FINANCES AND OUTLOOK

While the gifts for December were $566.22 in advance of last year, those of January fell behind $824.36. It is earnestly hoped that the receipts of February may make it possible for the Society to close its year in satisfactory financial condition. The Society faces a new fiscal year with unbounded opportunities for service.

ALL THAT SHE HAD

By Miss Emma A. Kautsky, Missionary, Mo.

We are sending our weekly contributions from Smelter Hill to the Congregational Sunday-School and Publishing Society. They are not large but they are sincerely consecrated to the Lord's work.

In some of these homes there are not many extra pennies. In one of them there is a little Mary, who wished to bring a penny. Her father had none to give her. But she found some old junk, sold it, and then brought her penny to Sunday-school. I wish you could have seen her that day. How eagerly she watched for the little basket to come her way! And how her arm, to meet it, stretched and stretched, as though made of elastic! She gave all that she had.

SNAPSHOTS FROM NORTHERN CALIFORNIA

Rev. Huber Burr gives interesting items of educational improvement as well as pioneering on the frontier.

"At Etna Mills there has been marked improvement in the Sunday-school. A Committee on Religious Education, appointed at the last annual church meeting, has taken hold of the whole question of Sunday-school work with commendable enthusiasm. A teacher training class has been the first fruit."

This place is far removed from the railroad, in a community which has almost no other social opportunities than those furnished by the church. The missionary gave stereopticon lectures on the "Life of Christ" and "Pilgrim's Progress," to which nearly everyone in the little town came.

The strenuous efforts which are sometimes demanded are illustrated in reaching this place for a Sunday evening service. "Four sermons and addresses were given, and a church business meeting was held, in serving Oro Fino, Quartz Valley, and Etna Mills; and it involved a journey, on foot, of twenty-two miles. The last six was a forced march at a double-quick to reach Etna Mills in time. It was, however, worth it."

STARTED WHERE NEEDED

By Rev. James N. Pendleton, E. Wash. and N. Ida.

On the train was a woman with two little girls to whom I gave some extra Sunday-school picture cards. The woman asked if I was a Sunday-school man, and then told me that she lived in a district where they had never had a Sunday-school. She said she would help to send word round if I would come.

Two weeks later I went to Tiger. Early Sunday morning I walked five miles to the Forest Home schoolhouse, and preached and organized the Sunday-school. The public school teacher, a fine young man, was elected superintendent. A ten mile walk in reaching two other churches completed a successful day. At one point we had a good service where I organized a Sunday-school a year ago.

CHRISTMAS TREE ON THE FRONTIER

By Rev. R. B. Holden, S. Dak.

At White Hill, our Sunday-school and preaching services are held in a sod house. The good people who live there offered to let us hold the Christmas exercises in their home. Christmas trees are scarce on the prairie but one was given us by another community where they had their "tree" earlier.

The sod house has two rooms,—one a kitchen, pantry, and reception-hall; the other, bedroom, sitting room and parlor. To make room enough for the tree and the crowd, they removed the partition, so that we had a good sized meeting place. We had a good time, and many who were there will look back with pleasure to this Christmas evening in the sod house on the prairie.

THE WOMAN'S CONGRESS OF MISSIONS PANAMA-PACIFIC EXPOSITION, SAN FRANCISCO

A committee of the missionary women of San Francisco and the nearby towns have been for sometime eagerly planning to take advantage of the opportunity of the Panama-Pacific Exposition, when so many strangers will be gathered in the coast city, for an adequate presentation of women's work in missions the world round. The efforts of the committee will include a program of missionary presentation covering the whole period of the Exposition, giving methods, mission study, missionary literature, pageants, plays, etc., as well as talks on the mission fields by those who have served in them. Gathering places and rest rooms for visitors will be a form of activity that will assure to every missionary woman who goes to San Francisco an opportunity to meet other women with interests similar to her own; this in itself should tremendously augment the spirit of unity that is so marked a feature of our day.

The plans further include a Women's Congress of Missions to be held early in June and to cover a period of about ten days. All local details are to be in the hands of the women's committee referred to above, but it is hoped that the program will be prepared and carried out under the direct auspices of the Federation of Women's Boards for Foreign Missions and the Council of Women for Home Missions, the two bodies representing thirty-six women's boards of missions. Subject to the present uncertainties as to conditions it is expected that missionaries from our own and many other lands will take part, and that the most prominent women in missionary organization work in the United States will be heard.

THE FEDERATION MEETING

The Federation plans to hold, at Headquarters, bi-monthly meetings, "for prayer, information and inspiration."

The first meeting, on February 1, at once established the value of the new undertaking. A helpful devotional service was led by Mrs. C. G. Phillips, of New Jersey, member of the Executive Committee of the A. M. A.

Mrs. M. W. Hankemeyer, representing the C. E. S., emphasized the vital need of trained leaders for religious work in new communities and pleaded for a more adequate support of the Education Society. Its schools set the educational standard for the regions in which they are established.

The date of the next meeting is April 5, 1915, at 10.30 A. M.; the place, 287 Fourth Avenue, New York City.

All women interested in missions are invited to attend these meetings.

The Committee on Young People's and Junior Work call the attention of all local leaders in Elementary Sunday-Schools to their plan for a children's Lenten offering in behalf of the various schools of the American Missionary Association. Attractive envelopes and educational material, for use with them, may be obtained from the A. M. A. offices. It is earnestly hoped that the response to the plan may be such that a regular observance of it may be established, varying the objects for gifts each year to touch all the phases of our work. It should be looked upon as a method of giving, in which we can all unite for the purpose of stimulating and increasing the interest of the children.
